

Andrew - now treatment free.
He's had his say, have you had yours?

Your Life Matters!

Calling all Australians with Chronic Lymphocytic Leukaemia (CLL) and Small Lymphocytic Leukaemia (SLL)

What would it mean for you to receive daily tablets for a fixed period, and then be able to go treatment-free?

A new combination therapy (ibrutinib and venetoclax) is being considered for funding through the PBS. It is oral, avoids chemotherapy, and is taken for 15 months by people with newly diagnosed CLL/SLL. Treatment is then halted, and doctors monitor for relapse.

A Government Committee wants to hear from you – whether you are newly diagnosed with CLL/SLL, have received prior therapy, or care for someone with this lymphoma.

Have your say from 22 November 2023 to 31 January 2024.

Patient Support hotline:

📞 1800 953 081
Mon-Fri 9am – 4.30pm EST

✉️ nurse@lymphoma.org.au

Visit lymphoma.org.au/YourLifeMatters

and follow us on Facebook.

Rebecca - now treatment free.
She's had her say, have you had yours?

10 minutes of your time could help change the lives of people with CLL / SLL!

We encourage everyone impacted by CLL / SLL to have their say, even though this treatment is only being considered for people who are newly diagnosed.

If you have already undergone therapy, the committee would benefit from hearing your view on what having daily tablets (non-chemotherapy) for a fixed period would have meant for you, and what difference it would make to then live treatment-free.

Tips on writing a submission

- ☒ Please be specific about what the new treatment would mean for you and/or provide examples of how past treatment has impacted you.
- ☒ Please avoid talking generally about cancer, clinical research, or medicines access.

The committee wants to hear your experiences and how tablets taken for a fixed period may improve the lives of people with newly diagnosed CLL/SLL.

Patient Support hotline:

 1800 953 081
Mon-Fri 9am – 4.30pm EST
 nurse@lymphoma.org.au

Visit lymphoma.org.au/YourLifeMatters

and follow us on Facebook.